Sari Duvet – Aqua Bouquet

Reclaimed saris, patched with care, are repurposed into this queen size duvet cover. Handmade by artisans of Sacred Mark, a workshop of artisan group Prokritee in Bangladesh. The artisans are women who have broken away from the sex trade and now make their living by making soap and handicrafts. Handwash cold, line dry, warm iron.

About the Artisans

Prokritee

Prokritee (meaning “nature” in Bengali) provides jobs for poor rural women: widows and divorcees, primarily rural, landless and with little or no income. Prokritee manages several handicraft enterprises and helps other groups sell their products in local and foreign markets. By providing jobs for women, Prokritee improves women’s standards of living and helps them send their children to school. The organization provides skills development training to artisans. The design department of Prokritee is committed to developing marketable designs based on Bangladesh’s cultural heritage. Prokritee creates and promotes income-generating projects that benefit the artisans, adhere to good safety and environmental standards and have the potential to become self-reliant.
